

Stamp duty abolished for all off-the-plan units up to $500,000

COVER STORY

Message from the Chief Minister

The ACT Government has been reducing stamp duty on property purchases over the past decade – saving new Canberra homeowners thousands of dollars.

Our next step is to completely abolish stamp duty on the purchase off-the-plan units valued under $500,000.

This will save first home buyers and Canberrans looking to downsize up to $11,400 off the up-front cost of buying a home.

Stamp duty abolished for all off-the-plan units up to $500,000

Stamp duty is now fully abolished on owner-occupier purchases of off-the-plan units valued at $500,000 or less. This is a significant next step in the ACT Government's ongoing tax reform program and reflects our commitment to improving housing affordability in the ACT.

The next phase of stamp duty reductions will be targeted at the lowest property value thresholds for owner-occupier purchases.

Stamp duty creates a barrier for many people to enter the housing market and that's why the next phase of reform will be targeted at increasing the benefit most for people buying a lower value property to live in.

Whether you're looking to purchase your first home, wanting to upgrade or to downsize, continuing to reduce stamp duty will make it easier for Canberrans to purchase the home that's right for them.

The new building supports the relocation of services to make way for the construction of the Emergency, Surgical and Critical Healthcare facility, due for completion in 2024.

Canberra drivers are being urged to put their phones on 'do not disturb' or out of reach to help keep the community safe.

If you use your mobile phone while driving, you're 10 times more likely to crash and are just as dangerous as a drink driver.

Patisserie makes the switch from single-use plastics

L'Orange in Manuka is backing the ACT Government's ban on selected single-use plastic items.

"Being a patisserie, we use a lot of takeaway products," says owner Wim Den Hartog.

"I want to make a real effort that what we use isn't bad for the environment. It's important to me for the future."

The ACT's ban on the sale and supply of single-use plastic cutlery, single-use plastic drink stirrers and expanded polystyrene takeaway containers is now in effect.
