Next steps for Telstra Tower transformation

Plans to revitalise Telstra Tower have taken another step forward.

The ACT Government has signed a Heads of Agreement with Telstra, which will guide detailed planning, design and operational work for the renewed tourist attraction.

The National Capital Authority has also granted conditional works approval for a change of use and key design elements.

The unique visitor experience will celebrate the cultural significance of Black Mountain, Canberra's identity, the tower's history and Australia's telecommunications story.

Telstra Tower is expected to reopen to visitors in the summer of 2027/28.
