Are you a Ngunnawal artist or creative? Are you interested in learning about public art? We're inviting Ngunnawal artists, designers and story-holders to collaborate with us, share Canberra stories, and explore creative ideas for public artwork at the Acton Waterfront Park.

The Acton Waterfront is being developed on the land and river country of the Ngunnawal people. Your culture, knowledge and stories will be a vital part of the final design.

The site offers several key locations where stories and knowledge can be shared through some form of public art, and we want to work specifically with Ngunnawal people to develop these artworks.

We're running a three-day professional development workshop for up to eight Ngunnawal creative individuals to collaborate with curators and facilitators on public art design concepts.

Artists will be paid $500 per day for their involvement.

There are eight places available for individuals at the workshop. To register your interest in being selected, artists are invited to submit an Expression of Interest by 4:00pm (AEST) on Friday, 1 September 2023.
