Message from the Chief Minister

The ACT Government is supporting thousands of local jobs through the delivery of its $6.6 billion infrastructure program. This includes new and upgraded facilities in public healthcare, public education, transport, city services and our sporting, arts and entertainment precincts.

Over the coming years, the Government will be delivering the infrastructure priorities it has already outlined, but also working on what comes next for the future of the city.

As Canberra's economic recovery continues, it is important that the Government invests strongly in our local infrastructure. And it will be infrastructure that is uniquely Canberran; built to support the lifestyle Canberrans want.

Canberra Hospital Expansion takes shape

A new 'superstructure' is rising out of the ground at Canberra Hospital as work continues to deliver bigger and better health infrastructure for our growing city.

The Critical Services Building will provide more operating rooms, treatment spaces and intensive care beds when it is completed in 2024.

Passers-by will start getting a better idea of how the finished building will look when facade installation starts later this year.

The new facility will link to the existing main hospital building through a welcome hall. To start that integration, Hospital Road has been reconfigured as separate north and south roads, with u-turns on both sides. A temporary hospital entrance is also in place.

London Circuit project gathers pace

Preparations are underway for work to start on raising London Circuit later this year.

The project will create a level intersection with Commonwealth Avenue, enabling the next stage of light rail and improving active travel between the city and the lake.

Before this project commences, traffic lights will be installed on both the Coranderrk Street roundabout and Vernon Circle to help with traffic flow during construction.

Clinicians test world-class hospital facilities

The medical staff at Canberra Hospital has started testing new medical facilities that will feature in the new Critical Services Building.

The prototype shed includes features to simulate an operating theatre, intensive care unit bay, resuscitation bay, equipment zones, staff stations and patient rooms.

Patient scenarios will test the equipment and layout before the new Critical Services Building opens in 2024.

Woden's transformation continues

We are revitalising the Woden Town Centre with a modern CIT campus.

We will soon ask the community for feedback on concept designs for the entire precinct.

Upgrades to Duffy shops

Work will soon start on a new playground, bike track and toilets at Duffy shops.

The project will incorporate better seating and landscaping, including native tree plantings.

This work forms part of the ACT Government's largest ever suburban infrastructure program.

E-scooter expansion

The shared e-scooter scheme is coming to Woden this year, providing an affordable, efficient and eco-friendly option for short trips across the region.

New bridge to transform Molonglo

A 227m bridge will be built over the Molonglo River to better connect the Molonglo Valley with Whitlam and Canberra's northern suburbs.

A design and construction partner will be appointed later this year to deliver the bridge as part of the project to complete John Gorton Drive.

Expected to open to traffic in late 2025, the project will support the local economy through the creation of more than 500 jobs. The bridge will significantly improve road safety and support Canberrans travelling between Woden and Belconnen via Coppins Crossing.

This project is jointly funded by the ACT and Australian Governments.

Acknowledgement of Country

Raising London Circuit guide

Understand how the impacts on your travel will be eased as construction starts on this city-shaping project.

Preparations are underway for work to start on raising London Circuit later this year.

The project will create a level intersection between London Circuit and Commonwealth Avenue, enabling the next stage of light rail and improving walking and cycling paths between the city and the lake.

With construction to affect travel through the city over the coming years, the ACT Government will work with the community and businesses to help minimise the impact. You will be told early and often about upcoming traffic changes, delays and transport and travel alternatives.

Works approved

The National Capital Authority has approved this project following extensive community consultation.

This means work can start on delivering this important road project for Canberra that will seamlessly connect the city to the lake.

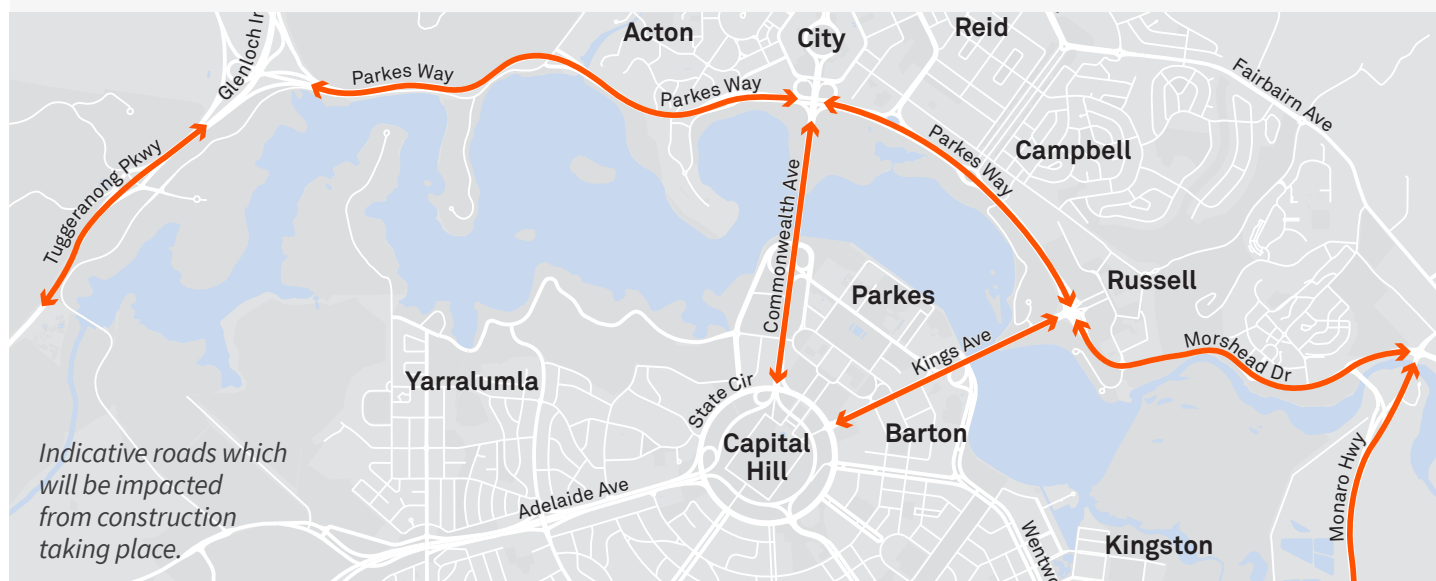

The most significant travel impacts are expected to start in early 2023 as main construction works scale up.

Preparing the road network

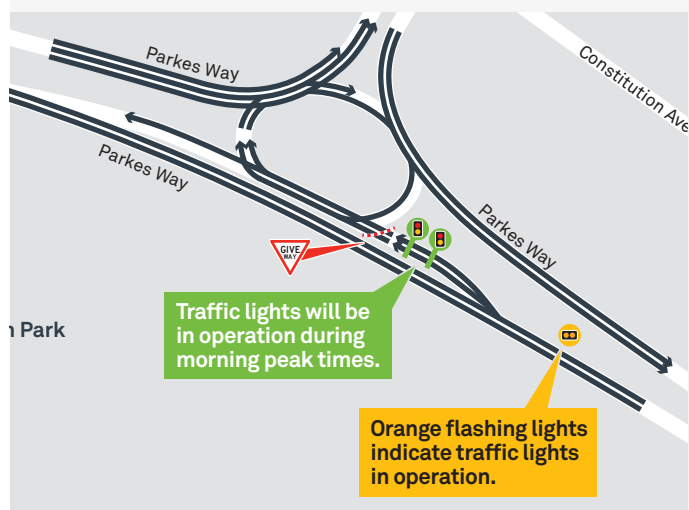

The road network will be improved before major construction work starts on raising London Circuit.

Coranderrk Street traffic lights

Traffic lights are being installed on the westbound lanes that turn right at the roundabout on Parkes Way to Coranderrk Street.

The lights will become operational later this year and will help support overflow traffic when Commonwealth Avenue's capacity is reduced in 2023.

Talk to us in the city

ACT Government representatives will be out and about across the city over the coming months to provide more information and answer your questions on raising London Circuit. For more on where to find us and to sign up to project updates, visit builtforCBR.act.gov.au.

Vernon Circle traffic lights

Temporary traffic lights will be installed on the northern side of Vernon Circle during construction to allow safe right turns onto Constitution Avenue and London Circuit.

Real-time traffic updates

Traffic monitoring technology installed in key locations across central Canberra will provide real-time traffic information to road users via road message boards, radio and social media.

Monitoring of the traffic network will also result in faster responses to accidents or issues before they cause congestion.

Path upgrades

Several shared paths will be upgraded and signs installed to help people walk, ride or scoot into the city.

Most paths around the construction zone will remain open – some with temporary detours – and a new path through City Hill will be built to improve pedestrian access.

Rethink your route, rethink your routine

Rethink your route, rethink your routine ahead of construction starting later this year.

This could mean travelling outside peak times or finding other ways to travel to the city such as walking, cycling or e-scooting.

Local kids name hospital cranes

A group of Garra Primary School students have celebrated the official naming of the two electric tower cranes at work on the Canberra Hospital's new Critical Services Building.

Following a public vote on 12 name submissions made by the Garra Primary School students, the winning names are 'Lightning McCrane' and 'Cranosaurus'.

These cranes play an important role moving heavy or bulky materials such as steel, concrete, machines and other items on the construction site.
